

RR Donnelley & Sons

America's Largest Printing Company

*"Man shifts about Beloved books that famous hands
have bound
Old marble heads, old pictures everywhere
Great rooms where traveled men and children
found content and joy"*

—W.B. Yeats

In June of 2005, Boyer-Rosene was selected to handle the RR Donnelley company's relocation from the Donnelley building on West Wacker Drive, to their new headquarters at John Buck's new tower at 111 S. Wacker. Boyer-Rosene had moved them into their existing space some 15 years earlier and was chosen not only because of quality moving reputation, but because of our expertise in handling rare, and irreplaceable books and documents. Donnelly's famous library contains rare volumes dating back to the 1400's including leaves from a Gutenberg Bible, the world's most valuable book, with complete copies estimated to be worth from $25,000,000.00—$40,000,000.00.

Boyer-Rosene's expert staff handled the office move with ease, and took great care to properly pack, prepare, transport, and unpack the entire contents of the Gaylord Donnelly library, including some unique works of art. The move was flawless with no losses or damages.

The Gaylord Donnelly Library

During the set-up period for the valuable collection, the books were carefully packed, transported to the new facility, and guarded overnight until they could be unpacked by Boyer-Rosene's crew, and carefully placed in locked display cabinets.

Separately, Boyer-Rosene managed the move of Donnelley Logistics from their warehouse and operations facilities in Willowbrook, to a new state-of-the-art 660,000 s.f. facility in Bolingbrook, Illinois.

Origin: The Donnelley Building

*Destination:
111 S. Wacker*

Donnelley Logistics

BOYER-ROSENE
"We Move . . . Chicago!"